

house. Didn't some lawyer named North come to you and get the letters from you? A Yes.

Q Some lady lawyer? A Yes.

Q And then some paper paid $500 for those letters?

A To my father.

Q Then Beekman sent for you and made you give up the $500 for the burial of your mother?

A I don't believe that was right. The $500 was given to my father.

Q You got it, or your father got it?

A My father got it.

Q You didn't get a penny. I was wrongly advised. Do you know this gentleman, Mr. Pfeiffer, the counsel for Mrs. Hall?

A Yes, sir.

Q Did you go to Mrs. Hall's house and endeavor to see her after your mother was murdered?

A Yes, sir.

Q And were you able to see her? A No, sir, I was not.

Q How long after your mother was murdered were you able to go to see Mrs. Hall?

A Probably a month or two.

Q And you met Counsellor Pfeiffer? A Yes, I did.

Q About what time of the day?

A About four, or four-thirty.
